ABSTRACT

In Postmodern literature there is a tendency to deconstruct the traditional values and stereotypes which have been reigning in the world of literature and culture. The critics like Derrida, Barthes, Stanley Fish, Homi K. Bhabha, Raymond Williams have radically departed from logocentric and absolutist preoccupation with fixity and stasis of language and literature. This is a significant critical trend in contemporary literature.

Introduction

Adiga himself says : "I wanted things in the book to correspond to reality, but filtered through Balram's views" (The Tribune, 19-10-2008). He makes the reader see that he is the product of the system that is discriminatory, biased, inequitable and therefore faulty.

Conclusion

Some critics may denounce the hasty and haphazard ways of Balram in killing his master and possessing his capitals to rise. It seems that Balram who was on periphery comes to be the centre and this is how on ethical grounds, his action may be said to be too individualistic and Machiavellian. But then none can deny the human elements of protest and desire for social change in Balram's action.

A Good Conclusion :-

Thus, the research have wider scope for new academician and research scholars.
