REVIEW OF THE ARTICLE

Historical Research Design: Way, Strength And Drawback

Ramesh Barman

ABSTRACT:

The problem statement was clear and well articulated Historical research is the process of methodically examining past events to give an account of what has happened in the past. Historical research can also mean gathering data from situations that have already occurred and performing statistical analysis on this data just as we would in a traditional experiment. The one input difference between this type of research and the type described in the first paragraph concerns the manipulation of data.

INTRODUCTION:

The introduction provides a good, generalized background of the topic that quickly gives the reader an appreciation Historical research involves interpreting past events to predict future ones. In Stan's case, he's interested in examining the reasons behind the Holocaust to try to prevent it from happening again. Historical research design involves synthesizing data from many different sources. Stan could interview former Nazis, or read diaries from Nazi soldiers to try to figure out what motivated them. He could look at public records and archives, examine Nazi propaganda, or look at testimony in the trials of Nazi officers.

METHODOLOGY:

This study was conceptual in nature. Author described a variable under study in detail. It is completely based on literature review.

PRESENTATION OF RESULTS:

Now it is also the duty of state to frame policies so that men and women have right to adequate means of livelihood While the findings of the study shows that, road connectivity, availability of electricity in remote rural areas, availability of basic needs for the travellers in remote rural areas, attractive character of nature with perfect innovation of mankind on it, supportive nature of the common citizen and police etc are the strength of the Sikkim which increase potentiality of the state in tourism sector.

REFERENCES:

Prior publication by the author(s) of substantial portions of the data or study was appropriately acknowledged.

RELEVANCE:

The study was relevant to the mission of the journal or its audience. The study addresses important problems or issues; the study was worth doing.
