Yallappa Khot

ABSTRACT:

The problem statement was clear and well articulated Since 1997, the suicides by farmers in Karnataka State have caught the attention of the state government, state legislators. This paper observes the issue of farmers' suicide in Karnataka from political perspective and explores how the political parties have responded to this agrarian crisis in Karnataka and how the political parties tried to play a kind of politics on the issue of farmers' suicide. Psychological, social, economic, agricultural and political factors are also taken into consideration for the analysis of farmers' suicide in Karnataka.

INTRODUCTION:

The introduction provides a good, generalized background of the topic that quickly gives the reader an appreciation Since 1997, the suicides by farmers in Karnataka State have caught the attention of the state government, state legislators. Over the past two decades, the incidence of farmers' suicides in the state has shown an alarming increase. It is now widely recognized in the state that there is a deepening and complex economic and social crisis in rural areas that has not been adequately addressed by any state government over the past two decades.

METHODOLOGY:

PRESENTATION OF RESULTS:

The amount of data presented was sufficient and appropriate. Tables, graphs, or figures were used judiciously and agree with the text According to the NCRB (National Crime Records Bureau) data 321 farmers have committed suicide in Karnataka during 2014. It is fifth highest in the country. It's matter of great concern for the state government. All political parties have politicised this issue. The opposition party will always try to use the issue to gain political mileage and the ruling party will always try to find excuses. Whichever party is in the power does the same things. There is a need of strong political willingness to find solutions to stop farmers' suicides.
