ABSTRACT: Tourism is an activity in which individuals can engage themselves during the free time at their disposal. For this they must have a passion for travelling and exploring places which could give them pleasure. They can undertake a tour to a nearby destination they have visited before or travel to a new destination. Media plays a significant role in the latter situation as it is a tool to provide the information of such places that are unknown to tourists and also highlight their hidden secrets at a longer platform. Today the media is promoting tourist destinations through newspapers, magazines, television, radio and cinema. By this vast variety of tools of media tourists are able to get easy information about different tourist destinations. This paper consists of two parts. First part is how media works to promote tourism by both traditional media and electronic media. Second part is how media has promoted India as a tourist destination for the whole world.

KEYWORDS: Tourism, Electronic media, Print media, Tourism promotion, Tourism impact.

INTRODUCTION: Tourism is concerned with holidays, travelling, going and arriving somewhere and most importantly pleasure. Tourism involves the business of providing information, transportation, accommodation and other services to the traveler. Tourism industry is made up of companies that provide services to all types of travelers, whether travelling for business or pleasure. Tourism promotion is one of the elements of the marketing mix. This promotion is done by advertisements which are part of media. Advertising is an activity designed to spread information with a view to promoting the sales of the marketing goods and the services. It uprates in two ways: Firstly, by spreading information amongst consumers and secondly by seeking to influence their judgment about particular goods and services which in this case are the tourist destinations. Any organization which uses this promotional instrument has to use the media. The different media that are used for promoting tourism are newspapers, magazines, radio, cinema, photography, internet, broacher, mails, videos and cable TV, broadcasting and telecasting programs. In the field of tourism all these promotional activities are designed to transmit to the public and to the travel trade specific professionals detailed information on aspects like transportation, communication, accommodation, prices, attractions etc.
