ABSTRACT

Feminism is a movement aimed at equal rights for women in legal, social, cultural, political and other systems and in gender norms. Many writers depicted the sufferings of women in their works, winning the attention of the readers for their emancipation. On the other hand some writers, though they be speaking for the cause of the oppressed, display the disgusting attitude towards women. John Osborne, through his play Look Back in Anger, definitely belongs to the latter category of the writers.

Conclusion

This was the attitude of certain male writers, even after 1950s, towards women. I hope this may make us realise the need and contribution of writings of the other women and men writers for the cause of women. Women need not to free only in the physical and political sense but from the patriarchal psyche of the men.

A Good Conclusion :-

Thus, the research have wider scope for new academician and research scholars.
